Behind The Scenes: Stories From Our Amazing Auditors

David Savage

PJR auditor David Savage experienced the loss of his residence earlier this year due to a mudslide incident. Fortunately, there were no injuries, although the entire house was lost. Following this event, Savage and his family temporarily resided with their in-laws until securing a new home in Forest Hills, California.

Subsequently, when planning to travel to another city back in August for a PJR audit, Savage encountered a hindrance caused by another mudslide obstructing the sole route down the mountain. Firefighters managed to partially clear the road, facilitating movement for residents. Despite facing such stress this year, Savage has exhibited remarkable resilience. Amidst the turmoil of losing his home and enduring these crises, he did not postpone any of his audit responsibilities. His ability to manage these situations has been truly admirable.

Tom Karika

Two teams from the 1973 Little League World Series, held in Williamsport, PA, got to return for the 50th anniversary back in August 2023. That year's European Champions from Bitburg Air Force Base, West Germany, and the Eastern Champions from Colonie, New York, had a long journey coming to the Little League World Series, but gained memories that have lasted them a lifetime.

The team from Germany was an all-American team of kids from United States Air Force families who were assigned to the Bitburg Air Force Base in what was West Germany. Among the players was PJR aerospace auditor, Tom Karika. He recalled, "It was surprising to be on TV. On the base in Germany there was only a four-hour broadcast that aired twice a day with a news broadcast in between. Live TV coverage was a new concept to many of the players". To learn more about the event, head over to the Williamsport Sun-Gazette. ♦

Manufacturing at an Industrial Scale

Perry Johnson Registrars, Inc. (PJR) is proud to introduce L&R Industries, who recently received ISO 9001:2015 certification for their Fabrication and Stamping Divisions. With over 50 years in business, L&R is an industry leader in the manufacturing of metal products, producing everything from heavy-duty chassis for industrial equipment, to agricultural machinery assemblies and sub-assemblies, material processing systems, feed mills, industrial ducting and air handling systems, charcoal production kilns and much more.

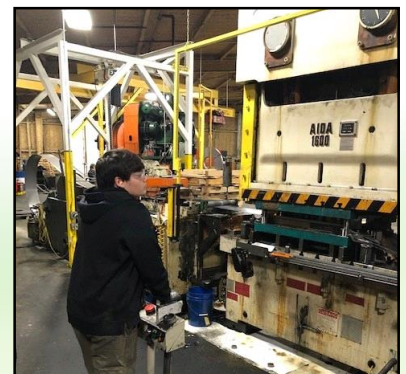

L&R Industries' Beehler Metal Stamping division is a recognized name in stamping, producing a wide variety of metal parts and components. Impressively, L&R is also the nation's largest producer of collapsible steel reels used in the HDPE pipe and other industries, with production approaching nearly a million units annually. To round it all out, they run their own mechanical steel tube mills, and they are master millwrights, which includes providing commercial and industrial electrical services.

As they ventured into ISO certification, L&R Industries witnessed the transformation of their operational landscape. Processes are becoming standardized, procedures more meticulously defined, and associates are receiving additional training. This commitment to certification ensures they maintain impeccable standards of quality, measured by both customer satisfaction and internal goals. Through certification, L&R Industries has opened the door to new markets and opportunities, helping them maintain their continued profitable growth.

L&R's alliance with PJR has been instrumental in their ISO 9001 journey. Chris Oravec, L&R Industries' Director of Support, says, "PJR has been great to work with. We partnered with them early on in the process to achieve our ISO 9001 certification and it was the right choice. They helped us every step of the way."

To sustain their growth into the future, L&R Industries is committed to continually investing in their people, state-of-the-art equipment, and a robust infrastructure focused on quality and efficiency. L&R has built its reputation on its commitment to quality, customer service and on-time delivery, and they're proud to be known as the go-to problem solvers for customers, creating cost-effective solutions and ongoing strategic partnerships that deliver value to all involved.

L&R Industries tells everyone, from their people to their customers, to "Value Our Performance". They know that when everyone on the L&R team takes pride in their work, then customers will, too. It's how they do business. PJR is proud to have been an important part of L&R's ISO 9001:2015 journey, and we're excited to see just how far they can grow into the future. ♦
